

Do you have questions about occupational safety and health?

Call the Oregon OSHA Resource Center.

Oregon OSHA Resource Center, a member of the National Network of Libraries of Medicine, is your one-stop source for occupational safety and health information.

OR-OSHA Resource Center products and services:

- An audiovisual library with more than 900 videos on a wide variety of topics, including forklift safety, hazard communication, workplace stress, and much more. All are available for loan; return postage is your only cost.
- Books, periodicals, and topical files
- ANSI and other consensus standards
- Electronic databases, including NFPA and CCOHS

- Access to NIOSH and other workplace safety and health Internet resources
- Skilled research assistance
- More than 70 Oregon OSHA publications and safety standards. Your first copy is free. Ask for the convenient CD-ROM, a library of OR-OSHA information and advice on your computer — whether or not you're in your office.

Call Oregon OSHA, (503) 378-3272 (V/TTY), or toll-free (800) 922-2689; ask for the Resource Center.

Visit the Oregon OSHA Resource Center:
Labor & Industries Building, 350 Winter St. NE,
Room 26, Salem, Oregon.

Visit us on the Web: www.orosha.org

Oregon Occupational Safety
& Health Division (OR-OSHA)

440-2435 (7/04/COM)

In compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), publications and other data are available in alternative formats. Call the OR-OSHA public relations manager, (503) 378-3272 (V/TTY).